Daniel Emil Herrbach, 68, of San Bernardino died peacefully in his home July 11th, 2022. Daniel (Danny) was born, September 23rd, 1953, in Chicago, Illinois to Joseph and June Herrbach. He was the youngest of three brothers. In 1956 the family moved to San Bernardino, California. He is preceded in death by his parents Joseph Charles Herrbach and June Marie Reich Herrbach, also his oldest brother Ron Herrbach.

In the early 70's Danny began his 40 plus year career at California State University as a groundskeeper which was perfect for him because of his love of the outdoors. Danny retired as Lead groundskeeper in 2018.

Danny always had a love for music, his passion as a child was to play the drums and was an excellent drummer. When he was a teenager, he became a part of a local band for many, many years. Since that time, even when life got busy, they have stayed in touch. In 1998 his son Jonathan was born, and he became Danny's life.

Danny is survived by his son Jonathan Joseph Herrbach of Highland, California, his brother Lawrence Herrbach of Yucaipa, California and nephew Aaron Herrbach of Lancaster, Wisconsin.

Danny is going to be greatly missed by everyone who knew him. He had a kind spirit and was always there in your need.

“ Dan Herrbach and I became friends at the age of 3 years old when his family moved in across the street from mine. There were countless hours of "busy street", backyard games, hikes up to "the swamp" and the "bush caves" in the foothills north of our homes, and who knows how many miles traversed as we walked--and later drove--to schools together at Golden Valley and Cajon. We had an informal lawn service while in high school which gave us cash for gas as we drove our Dad's cars for aimless cruising or the occasional date when we could find a girl to go out with. Most of all I remember Dan's sense of humor...we laughed a LOT, at ourselves and the foibles of the humans around us. I tagged along on some of Dan's rock band's gigs a few times when home from college. We stayed in touch over the years after I moved away from California. Dan shared some of his fiction writing with me as his vivid imagination led him to write a few novel length stories. Dan was rightly proud of the work he did for the state college. Most of all, he was a dedicated father to his son Jonathan. I will miss the occasional calls we had in the later years, and most all the reminiscing we did about all the fun we had as boys and young men together. RIP, Danny!

“ I knew Danny through his brother, Larry who is my brother in law. Danny always had a smile and was very pleasant whenever I saw him. Sending prayers for comfort and peace to his family ❤️🙏

“ If I could think of two words to best describe my Uncle Danny, they would be loving and generous, Uncle Danny and I spent many hours on the phone lifting each other's spirits up. We often told many jokes and he was someone I could count on when I needed him most. Uncle Danny also always helped his family and friends out, whenever they needed him. I also know from the conversations we had that his biggest desire was to go home and be with God. So rest in peace my Uncle and my friend. Your suffering is over.
